

Identify and Report Children and Young People at Risk Project Protecting kids

Current and consistent training is vital to enable human services professionals to identify children and young people at risk of harm.

We are proud to launch a national project to review the unit CHCPRT001 Identify and respond to children and young people at risk which is included in 12 community services qualifications and determine whether it is time to replace it with the updated CHCPRT025 Identify and report children and young people at risk.

Benefits of being involved

Your input is important and will:

- help align qualifications with current legislation and reporting requirements
- ensure the community services workforce is prepared to identify and respond to child protection concerns
- provide insight into workforce training needs and opportunities for improvement.

How to get involved

Please visit humanability.com.au to learn more about the project and register for updates and consultation opportunities.

Webpage: Identify and Report Children and Young People at Risk Review

During the consultation period, you'll be invited to participate in activities such as workshops, meetings and feedback submissions.