

Individual and Disability Support Qualifications – Implementation Review Project

Get Involved!

HumanAbility has launched a new workforce development initiative, the Individual and Disability Support Qualifications: Implementation Review.

This project focuses on reviewing the implementation of two recently updated qualifications, the Certificate III in Individual Support and Certificate IV in Disability Support. The qualifications are recognised as critical pre-employment training pathways for the aged care and disability support sector.

The review aims to identify any current issues, challenges and barriers to implementing the two qualifications and will explore ways to enhance the delivery and uptake of the qualifications. It will also help to increase the workforce to address growing demand for services and enhance service delivery outcomes.

Benefits of being involved

Your involvement in the project is important and will:

- provide valuable insights and feedback on the implementation of the qualifications in practice
- identify any issues, barriers and challenges encountered during the implementation – and identify improvements and solutions
- inform the development of strategies and resources to enhance implementation
- contribute to workforce development.
